

Cookie Policy

Bypress | Last updated: 12 May 2026

Overview

This Cookie Policy explains how Bypress may use cookies and similar technologies on our website to support functionality, understand website performance, and improve user experience.

What Cookies Are

Cookies are small text files placed on your device when you visit a website. They help websites remember information about your visit and can support essential features or analytics.

Types of Cookies We May Use

We may use strictly necessary cookies for core website functionality, performance or analytics cookies to understand how visitors use the site, and preference cookies where relevant.

Analytics and Measurement

If analytics tools are enabled, they may collect information such as pages visited, browser type, approximate location, device information, and interactions with the website.

Third Party Cookies

Some cookies may be set by third party services used on the website, such as embedded content, analytics providers, hosting tools, or security services.

Managing Cookies

Most browsers allow you to block, delete, or manage cookies through browser settings. Blocking some cookies may affect website functionality or performance.

Updates

We may update this Cookie Policy when website functionality, legal requirements, or cookie practices change.

Contact

For cookie questions, contact Bypress at bypress.ie/contact

Important Note

This document is a general cookie policy template and should be reviewed by a qualified legal professional before being relied upon as legal advice.

