Bypress | Last updated: 12 May 2026

Overview

This Privacy Policy explains how Bypress collects, uses, stores, and protects personal information when you visit our website, contact us, or use our outsourced office administration and business support services.

Information We May Collect

We may collect contact details, business details, enquiry information, correspondence, service requirements, website usage information, and any other information you choose to provide when communicating with us.

How We Use Information

We use information to respond to enquiries, provide services, manage client relationships, improve our website and operations, maintain records, meet legal obligations, and communicate with you about relevant Bypress services.

Legal Basis

Where required by applicable data protection law, we process personal information based on consent, contract necessity, legitimate interests, legal obligations, or another lawful basis that applies to the circumstances.

Sharing Information

We do not sell personal information. We may share information with trusted service providers, professional advisers, technology suppliers, or authorities where required to operate our business, deliver services, or comply with the law.

Data Security

We take reasonable technical and organisational steps to protect information from unauthorised access, loss, misuse, alteration, or disclosure. No method of transmission or storage is completely secure.

Data Retention

We keep personal information only for as long as reasonably necessary for the purposes described in this policy, including legal, accounting, contractual, and operational requirements.

Your Rights

Depending on applicable law, you may have rights to access, correct, delete, restrict, object to, or request a copy of your personal information. To make a request, contact us using the details below.
